God of CARNAGE

by Yasmina Reza

Two pairs of parents attempt to hold a cordial meeting after their sons are involved in a playground fight, though as their time together progresses, increasingly childish behavior throws the evening into a comedy of chaos and bad manners. The adults start acting like children in this edgy satire from Yasmina Reza that catapults the IRT audience into the middle of a war zone where words are the weapons and things are never what they seem. Winner for Best Play at the 2009 Tony Awards.

This production contains strong language.
